

CSA stands for Community Supported Agriculture. CSA members pay for a season of produce before the growing begins so we can purchase new seed, make equipment repairs and other necessary moves for a successful year. Once our veggies are ready for harvest, you receive a weekly selection of vegetables for the duration of our growing season.

With the opening of the Crooked Row Farm Market in Orefield, we are now able to provide an even more diverse array of food for your table while supporting our neighbor farmers by supplementing our own fruits and vegetables with theirs. All food will be accredited to each farmer so you know who is growing what for your meals. All growers involved maintain our own rigorous standards of organic practices, land stewardship and sustainability. These CSA Store Shares are available, as well as a Buying Club option that would allow members to pay for a specific cash amount of produce at the start of the season, which they could shop for at their leisure while receiving 10% off of purchases on the first week of each month.

We'll have a weekly e-mail explaining the shares, a section of the website dedicated to recipes for all and a couple of get togethers, workshops and market events throughout the season as an opportunity to meet your growers and each other.

If you are interested in a more traditional CSA bag that is grown by one farmer, we will be hosting Yellow Sky Farm's CSA at the stand. Visit <http://www.yellowskyfarm.com/> for details.

My Promise - In consideration of your seasonal membership, the Farm promises to deliver to you weekly, one share, as described in your selections, full of vegetables, fruits, and other local eats from our fields and from our trusted partner farmers.
